BEFORE YOU START

Start Here

Ten minutes here will save you months of guessing. Read this section first, then go level by level.

How this guide works

This guide takes you from Level 0, where you have no audience yet, to Level 100, where you have a large and loyal audience, real income and a system that keeps running without burning you out. Each level builds on the one before it. Read them in order the first time, then come back to any level whenever you need it.

Every level follows the same pattern:

- Know. The ideas that matter, explained in plain words.
- Do. Steps, settings, scripts and templates you can use the same day.
- Level up. A checklist at the end. Tick every box before you move on. When growth stalls, the reason is almost always an empty box.

DO THIS NOW

Act as you read

Every time you reach a Do this now box, stop and do it before you read on. People who act while they read get results. People who only collect tips don’t.

The level map

Here is the whole journey on one page. Each level shows the stage where it matters most, but the skills stack: an account with 100,000 followers still uses Level 40 every single day.

0	The Foundations How the LinkedIn feed decides what people see, and why it rewards expertise over everything else.	Before your first post
10	Choose Your Expertise Decide what you want to be known for, and by whom, so every post builds the same reputation.	Before your first post
20	A Profile That Converts Your profile is your landing page. Make it sell your expertise in five seconds.	0 followers
30	Plan Content People Want Content pillars, post types and a simple weekly plan you can keep alongside a full-time job.	0 to 1,000 followers
40	Write Posts People Read Opening lines, structures, formatting, carousels and video: the craft behind posts that travel.	100 to 1,000 followers
50	Work With the Algorithm How LinkedIn distributes posts, what lifts and what limits reach, and the myths to ignore.	Around 1,000 followers
60	Accelerate Your Growth Comment strategy, smart connecting, newsletters and collaborations that multiply your reach.	1,000 to 10,000 followers
70	Read Your Numbers Find out which posts build your reputation and which ones only collect reactions.	Around 10,000 followers
80	Build Real Relationships On LinkedIn, relationships are the real return. Turn readers into a network that opens doors.	10,000 to 50,000 followers
90	Turn Reputation Into Income Clients, career growth, speaking, newsletters and partnerships: how LinkedIn really pays.	From about 1,000 followers
100	Scale and Last A system, a team and a reputation that keep growing without taking over your life.	50,000 followers and beyond

The growth equation

Every account grows through the same three numbers. When growth is slow, one of them is broken, and every level in this guide fixes one or more of them.

Reach

How many new people see your posts. Driven by hooks, watch time, shares and how well LinkedIn understands your topic.

Conversion

How many of those people choose to follow. Driven by a clear niche, a strong profile and a promise of more to come.

Retention

How many keep watching, engaging and buying. Driven by quality, consistency and a real community.

How fast can you grow?

Some accounts grow from zero to a million in a few months. It happens, and this guide shows you what those accounts do differently. It isn't the usual path, though, and anyone who promises it to you is selling something.

Fast growers almost always have these five things in common:

1. A focused topic that professionals care about. Narrow enough to be known for one thing, broad enough that a whole industry relates to it.
2. High output during the growth phase. Often a post every weekday, plus daily comments on other people's posts.
3. Short learning loops. They publish, read the numbers within 48 hours, change one thing and publish again.
4. A breakout post with a profile ready for it. When a wave of new people arrives, the profile turns them into followers.
5. Patience long enough for luck to find them. Most breakouts arrive after dozens of posts that didn't break out.

REALITY CHECK

Measure in posts, not in weeks

Judge your account after your first 90 posts, not your first 9. Early posts teach LinkedIn who to show you to, and they teach you what works. Most people quit just before the compounding starts.

GOOD TO KNOW

What "millions" means on LinkedIn

Very few LinkedIn members have a million followers, because the network rewards depth over size. Here, the big numbers are impressions: a strong creator reaches millions of professionals a year. Ten thousand engaged followers in your industry can be worth more in clients, jobs and deals than a million followers anywhere else.

What you need

- A smartphone or laptop. Everything in this guide works with free tools.
- Thirty to ninety minutes a day, most days. Level 0 helps you plan the time.
- Free tools to begin with. Paid tools are optional, and mentioned only where they genuinely save time.

LEVEL 0 Before your first post

The Foundations

0

How the LinkedIn feed decides what people see, and why it rewards expertise over everything else.

0.1

How the LinkedIn feed works

LinkedIn wants members to leave the feed feeling they learned something useful from people worth knowing. Its feed ranks posts for each member, and LinkedIn has said publicly that it prioritises posts that share knowledge and advice, and content from people a member actually knows or cares about.

Three kinds of signal shape how far a post travels:

Relevance

Does the post match what this member cares about: their job, their industry, the topics they engage with?

Dwell time

How long people stop to read. LinkedIn's engineers have written publicly about using time spent on a post as a ranking signal.

Conversation

Thoughtful comments and replies, reposts with commentary, saves and sends, and who is taking part.

Write posts that make the right professionals stop, read to the end and want to reply. Almost everything in this guide comes back to that.

0.2

Your network sees it first

When you publish, LinkedIn shows your post to a small part of your network first: some of your connections and followers. If they read and respond, LinkedIn shows it to more of them, then to their networks and to people interested in the topic. Posts can keep circulating for days, sometimes weeks.

That has two consequences:

- Your network quality matters. A network of people in your field, who care about your topics, gives every post a strong start.

- The first readers decide a lot. A clear opening and real substance matter more than posting at the perfect minute.

0.3

Connections and followers

	Connections	Followers
What it is	A two-way relationship. You both see each other's posts	A one-way relationship. They see your posts, you don't see theirs
Limit	Up to 30,000	Unlimited
Best for	Your industry, clients, partners, colleagues	Anyone who wants your content

Every connection is also a follower. Grow both, but connect deliberately with the people you most want to reach.

0.4

Personal profile or company page?

People trust people, so posts from personal profiles usually reach far more members than posts from company pages. If you're building a business, grow your own profile first and use the company page for official news, jobs and proof. Encourage your team to post from their profiles too.

0.5

Set your goal

Goal	What success looks like	Content focus
Clients and sales	Enquiries from your ideal buyers every week	Expertise, case studies, insights, proof
Career growth	Job offers, promotions and recruiter interest	Your work, lessons and industry insight
Thought leadership	Speaking invitations, media and a known name	Original ideas, strong opinions, data
Network and opportunities	Partners, investors, mentors and collaborators	Stories, questions, sharing others' work

TEMPLATE

Your 12-month goal

In 12 months, I want NUMBER followers who are JOB TITLES OR INDUSTRY, so that I can WHAT IT GIVES YOU.

EXAMPLE

"In 12 months, I want 10,000 followers who are HR leaders and founders in India, so that I win four new consulting clients and two speaking invitations."

0.6

Plan your time

Time per week	A realistic plan	Best for
2 to 3 hours	2 posts a week, plus 10 minutes of comments a day	Busy professionals and leaders
5 to 7 hours	3 to 4 posts a week, 20 minutes of comments a day	A serious personal brand
10 hours or more	A post every weekday, a newsletter, 30 minutes of comments a day	Consultants, founders and full-time creators

0.7

The rules that never change

1. Expertise beats entertainment. LinkedIn rewards posts that teach, explain and share real experience.
2. Specific beats general. Real numbers, real names (with permission), real mistakes and real lessons.
3. Comments are content. Thoughtful comments on other people's posts are one of the fastest ways to grow.
4. Consistency beats virality. A steady rhythm of useful posts builds a reputation. One viral post rarely does.
5. Be human. Professional doesn't mean stiff. Write like you talk to a respected colleague.

AVOID THIS

Shortcuts that wreck profiles

Never buy followers or reactions, never join engagement pods that trade likes and comments on schedule, and never use tools that automate connection requests, messages or comments. LinkedIn restricts accounts that use automation, pods produce low-quality engagement from the wrong people, and fake activity makes your profile look worse to the people who matter.
